

Jennifer Kahn Ruoff Bio

Jennifer has been helping families with children of all ages and any special needs for over 25 years in Westchester. Jennifer understands how daunting it is to raise a child with different abilities and knows that no one should have to navigate this process alone.

Jennifer is a Licensed Master Social Worker with master's degrees from Columbia University School of Social Work and in Elementary and Secondary Special Education from Bank Street College of Education. She has worked as a classroom teacher, a school social worker, in agencies and in private practice providing family counseling for parents with children with special needs and special education advocacy services. Jennifer is trained in Group Psychotherapy, Applied Behavior Analysis and is a trained facilitator in Restorative Justice. She also facilitates parent support groups and provides teacher trainings.

Jennifer helps parents navigate the special education system while getting the right services, programs and resources for their children to maximize their educational, behavioral and social-emotional potential in school, at home and in the community. She creates SMART goals and accommodations that are specific to each child's individual needs based on her many years of experience understanding the options.
